7 OF THE QUEEN'S FAVORITE PRODUCTS THAT YOU CAN ACTUALLY AFFORD TO BUY

We will never be royals, but we can treat ourselves like royalty!

With the passing of Queen Elizabeth II at the age of 96, the lives and luxuries of the royal family have once again come under scrutiny. While many markings of the British monarchy are out of reach for most people — how many people do you know who have not one, but more than 20 elaborate residences? — you can give yourself the royal treatment by trying some of the late queen's favorite products.

The Royal Warrant of Appointment — commonly known as the Royal Warrant — is granted to companies and individuals who provide goods and services to the royal family, and Queen Elizabeth handed them out in spades over her 70-year reign. According to a searchable database from the Royal Warrant Holders Association, Her Majesty the Queen granted 620 Royal Warrants, ranging from beauty companies and candy confectioners to clothing manufacturers and home goods makers.

We scoured the list to find seven must-try products that have been crowned with the queen's favor, from perfume to moisturizer and even the quintessential tea set. Because even if you'll never be royal, you can still pamper yourself like one.

ONE SCENT TO RULE THEM ALL

Generic

Floris London White Rose
Eau de Toilette

$132 AT AMAZON

You may not have royal blood like the queen, but you can smell like you do. Floris London is the only perfumer to hold a Royal Warrant granted by Queen Elizabeth II. And while no one knows for sure which scent Her Majesty was drawn to, the brand's classic White Rose was her rumored favorite.

The eau de toilette includes strong floral notes, including rose (as per the name), iris, jasmine, and violet, as well as a base of earthy musk. The heritage of this particular perfume traces back to the early 1800s, so, like the monarchy, you could consider it timeless!
